Ned Kelly – Last Stand Up

Critically acclaimed satirist, Kieran Butler, (Collingwood ruined my Life, Ben Cousins – a rock opera) presents Ned Kelly as a take-no-prisoners, stand-up comic.

Australia's famous bushranger, revolutionary, cop-killer, republican was a prolific writer and raconteur in the 1800's. His impromptu performance in Jerilderie, where he dared the audience to shoot him dead on the spot, was legendary.

Armed with folk songs and a big beard this famous folk criminal returns in 2011 and cracks the funny about the state of our enigmatic nation.

'Ned Kelly – Last Stand Up' is brand new Australian satire from the man who conceived and co-wrote the spectacular 'Che Guevara on the Fringe'.

With a cameo appearance by Sean Kelly (ex-TISM) and support act, Andrew Bolt-Action, 'Ned Kelly – Last Stand up' marks a return to the type of razor sharp political comedy that made "Che Guevara on the Fringe" (*The Scotsman) a critically acclaimed sell-out hit in Edinburgh.

"Humorous... parodies the attitudes of those who adhere to the views expressed by Andrew Bolt... funny observations of Australian society... nifty songs" - The Pun

"Ferocious, satirical... current and very political... very funny... good laughs"
- Herald Sun
